Fall of Antwerp

Belgian Port Gives Nazis
New Wedge on North Sea

Military men have rated Antwerp as one of the strongest fortifications in Europe.

But the Germans say they have captured it now ever more quickly than they did in their 1914 drive through Belgium.

Berlin declared it fell swiftly today after the allied line in Belgium had to fall back from the defense of Brussels to preserve contact with the battered and impetioned allied line in northern France.

Its fall to the Germans may prove more costly to the allies in this war than it did in the last.

Strategic Base for Nazis
First, it would give the nazis a new wedge on the North Sea coast—the closest they have come yet to the channel ports from which they might launch an aerial blitzkrieg on England.

Second, Antwerp provided a strong anchor for the allies' northern flank on the western front, and, therefore, a position of vital importance to their whole defense structure.

Nazi Push Deeper Into
France, Take Antwerp;
Checking Them—Allies

(By The Associated Press)

German tanks, armored cars and warplanes blasted deeper inroads into northern France today but the allies indicated they were beginning to check the nazi thrusts.

Adolf Hitler's advance guards had swept to within 60 miles of Paris and the main army was only 40 miles behind, authorized German sources said.

D.N.B., official news agency, announced German forces had entered Antwerp.

Nazi forces unfurled the swastika flag over Belgium's chief port and commercial city, D.N.B., official German news agency reported, after a lightning stab through its fortifications—rated among the strongest in Europe.

In German hands, Antwerp is a double-edged threat to the allies—a menace to their whole line defending Paris, and a gate to the channel ports from which the nazis could loose an aerial blitzkrieg on England.

The situation on the western front "is very serious but certainly no worse and possibly a little bit better" than Friday, a British spokesman asserted.

Report Heavy Casualties
Pounding into stiffening French ranks, the nazis were gaining only at the expense of tremendous casualties, the French declared.

At least half of Germany's entire mechanized army was said to be leading the offensive in what a French war ministry spokesman called "the most gigantic battle of all times."

Nazis Use 3,000 Tanks
Between 2,500 and 3,000 German tanks were believed to have been assembled in the French pocket and, at some places, French artillery was shelling them at point blank.

Retreat in Belgium was admitted by the allies but was explained as a withdrawal to conform with the situation in France.

Capture of 2,000 Dutch and French soldiers in Holland was reported by the nazi high command.

The Dutch commander on Walcheren Island, in the southwestern Zeeland province, had offered to capitulate, it said, and several Dutch naval vessels were taken.

Fighting in the air was unabated. Nine British hurricane fighters shot down 10 German Junkers bombers over France Friday, the British air ministry declared.

Disregard Superiority
Disregarding the nazis' numerical superiority, the allies were pitting their fighters against hundreds of German planes and were dumping what the French said were thousands of tons of bombs on German forces and communication lines.

Striving to combat the nazi air superiority, France ordered all her aviation industries immediately on a 12-hour work day.

"The great rush is on again," a French war ministry spokesman declared. "The situation is very serious but not catastrophic."

Fall of Antwerp

Belgian Port Gives Nazis
New Wedge on North Sea

(By The Associated Press)
Military men have rated Antwerp as one of the strongest fortifications in Europe.

But the Germans say they have captured it now ever more quickly than they did in their 1914 drive through Belgium.

Berlin declared it fell swiftly today after the allied line in Belgium had to fall back from the defense of Brussels to preserve contact with the battered and imperiled allied line in northern France.

Its fall to the Germans may prove more costly to the allies in this war than it did in the last.

Strategic Base for Nazis

First, it would give the nazis a new wedge on the North Sea coast—the closest they have come yet to the channel ports from which they might launch an aerial blitzkrieg on England.

Second, Antwerp provided a strong anchor for the allies' northern flank on the western front, and, therefore, a position of vital importance to their whole defense structure.

The premier will be assisted by Marshal Petain in his leadership.

Marshal Petain, who will be 84 years old next Friday, until today was France's ambassador to Spain where he was sent when France recognized the civil war conquest of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's nationalists.

2 Vehicles in Local "Graveyard"
Linked to African Expedition

SURROUNDED by wrecked trucks, cars, taxicabs, tractors and other motorized derelicts in the Hobson D. Crouse "auto graveyard" a mile south of here along the Littlestown highway, rest two famed "world travelers"—a car and truck that carried adventurers on one or possibly two thrill-packed trips through darkest Africa and other little visited parts of the world.

The other day a sharp-eyed motorist noticed close to the highway at the Crouse property a light colored truck on whose faded sides can be read plainly the itinerary of the

Nazi Push Deeper Into
France, Take Antwerp;
Checking Them-Allies

(By The Associated Press)
German tanks, armored cars and warplanes blasted deeper inroads into northern France today but the allies indicated they were beginning to check the nazi thrusts.

Adolf Hitler's advance guards had swept to within 60 miles of Paris and the main army was only 40 miles behind, authorized German sources said.

D.N.B., official news agency, announced German forces had entered Antwerp.

Nazi forces unfurled the swastika flag over Belgium's chief port and commercial city, D.N.B., official German news agency reported, after a lightning stab through its fortifications — rated among the strongest in Europe.

In German hands, Antwerp is a double-edged threat to the allies—a menace to their whole line defending Paris, and a gate to the channel ports from which the nazis could loose an aerial blitzkrieg on England.

The situation on the western front "is very serious but certainly no worse and possibly a little bit better" than Friday, a British spokesman asserted.

Report Heavy Casualties

Pounding into stiffening French ranks, the nazis were gaining only at the expense of tremendous casualties, the French declared.

At least half of Germany's entire mechanized army was said to be leading the offensive in what a French war ministry spokesman called "the most gigantic battle of all times."

Nazis Use 3,000 Tanks

Between 2,500 and 3,000 German tanks were believed to have been assembled in the French pocket and, at some places, French artillery was shelling them at point blank.

Retreat in Belgium was admitted by the allies but was explained as a withdrawal to conform with the situation in France.

Capture of 2,000 Dutch and French soldiers in Holland was reported by the nazi high command. The Dutch commander on Walcheren island, in the southwestern Zeeland province, had offered to capitulate, it said, and several Dutch naval vessels were taken.

Fighting in the air was unabated. Nine British hurricane fighters shot down 10 German Junkers bombers over France Friday, the British air ministry declared.

Disregard Superiority

Disregarding the nazis' numerical superiority, the allies were pitting their fighters against hundreds of German planes and were dumping what the French said were thousands of tons of bombs on German forces and communication lines.

Striving to combat the nazi air superiority, France ordered all her aviation industries immediately on a 12-hour work day.

"The great rush is on again," a French war ministry spokesman declared. "The situation is very serious but not catastrophic."

185 IN LEAGUE
RESIGN POSTS

Geneva, May 18 (AP)—About 185 officials and employees of the League of Nations resigned today under a plan of curtailment preparatory to possible flight of the organization's headquarters due to war.

Secretary General Joseph A. C. Avenol at a staff meeting Thursday had given 205 of them the choice of handing in their resignations—and getting six months' pay—or agreeing to suspension of their contracts, with only three months' pay, at any time he should declare an emergency.

There are 329 employees in all, 69 of whom will establish new headquarters in Vichy, France, in event Switzerland is invaded, while 37 will be given leave and 18 will remain in Geneva as gardeners and caretakers at the great palace of peace.

CHARGES DROPPED

Larceny charges against Charles Hawn, South Washington street, and James Matthews, Steinwehr avenue, were dropped Friday evening during a hearing before Justice of the Peace John H. Basore after the defendants agreed to make restitution for scrap iron they were charged by Vernon Straley, Mt. Joy township, with having taken from his property. They also were ordered to pay the costs of the case.

Firemen Called "Soldiers of Peace"; 119 Get Diplomas

Before a crowd that nearly filled the county court room Friday evening, 119 volunteer firemen of Adams county were presented with diplomas marking their graduation from the Firemen's school conducted here during the winter and early spring. The firemen were handed their diplomas by Arthur W. Espey, chief instructor for the Firemen's schools in the state of Pennsylvania.

Speakers praised the county firemen's organization as a body of "soldiers of peace" and one of this county's "greatest safeguards against fifth column activities or any infiltration of troublemakers into our country."

17 Companies Represented
Graduates of the training course represented 17 county companies and ranged in age from 18 to 67 years. Many company chiefs were among those handed diplomas with the congratulations of Mr. Espey. Gettysburg led the list with a class of 18. Littlestown was second with 12; McSherrytown, 11; Aspers, nine; Centennial and East Berlin, eight each; New Oxford, seven; Reaser Hose company of Gettysburg, Greenmount, Bonneauville, and Fairfield, six each; Biglerville and York Springs, five each; Abbottstown, four; Barlow and Mt. Joy community, three each, and Bendersville, two.

GERMANS PUSH DEEPER INTO FRENCH REGION

able tank columns, including some 80-ton machines so strong that no gun smaller than a French "75" could stop them, the French indicated they had been able to hold the fight to the same general area as Friday—the Aves-Vervins-Rethel-Sedan bulge which the nazis have pushed through the little Maginot line.

Against the German power thrusts the French threw fierce counter attacks seeking to halt the invaders already between 35 and 40 miles inside the French frontier.

Great Britain announced her royal air force again had penetrated western Germany to bomb military objectives.

All Britain was grave. The British press called it the "dark-est hour" since 1918 when allied armies faced defeat at the hands of the driving armies of Imperial Germany.

London's gloom was deepened by a war office announcement that British troops had withdrawn to new positions west of the Belgian capital. There was no British confirmation, however, of the Berlin claim that nazis troops had occupied Brussels.

Dutch Islands Abandoned

Announcement that Dutch and French forces had abandoned the islands of Beveland and Walcheren in Zealand province, last stand of the Dutch, heightened the foreboding of Britons. Official sources sought to stiffen British morale by saying the country had faced such situations before and was able to do it again.

The German high command announced the navy had mined enemy ports in Africa.

The government of Prime Minister Churchill was reported trying a new, more friendly approach to better relations with Soviet Russia. In the Balkans, where there was no relaxation of the fear of war, there and elsewhere in Europe, foreigners scurried to repatriate themselves. Italians in Rumania were advised by their legation to return home.

The premier of Thailand (Siam) Luang Bipli Songgram, cabled the 19-year-old King Ananda in Switzerland the suggestion that he either go to the United States to continue his education or return home.

Rumania began a drive anew against "fifth columnists"; Greece called another class of reserves to the colors and Yugoslavia sought to find out what help she could expect from Greece if Italy should attack her.

21 Nations Protest

In the western hemisphere the 21 American republics gave unanimous approval to a declaration of protest against nazi Germany's invasions of neutral countries.

Circulated by Uruguay, the declaration got a reaction of "unreserved adhesion" from the United States. All over the United States leaders and officials voiced support for the greatest peacekeeping preparedness drive in the history of the republic. Congress cut corners to speed a $1-182,000,000 defense program toward house and senate approval.

Former President Hoover and Alfred M. Landon, former republican presidential nominee, backed the defense program of President Roosevelt.

Bitter fighting was reported again in the war in China. The Chinese claimed they had crushed the main Japanese force in central China and had captured Tsanyang, Japanese base, after a day of fierce hand-to-hand struggle.

the York Springs school district also was given a tentative inspection. Final inspections were made of the budgets for Oxford, Highland and Reading townships and Arendtsville and East Berlin boroughs. Those budgets will be signed today and forwarded to Harrisburg for final approval.

Fined $25 After Auto Hits Pole

Russell K. Panus, 23, Gardners R. 2, was fined $25 and ordered to pay the costs on a charge of reckless driving Friday night by Justice of the Peace Leo A. Storm, Mt Pleasant township, after Panus had wrecked his coach-type automobile against a telephone pole about a mile east of Bonneville on the Hanover highway. The accident occurred about 11 o'clock.

Panus is reported to have been driving west when his car ran off the right edge of the highway, mounted a two-foot embankment and then struck the pole with the side of the car. Total damage was estimated at about $150 but Panus and a companion escaped injury.

The two occupants are reported to have left the scene soon after the crash. They were located in a nearby roadhouse by Officer George J. Evanko, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, who investigated the accident and then fined the reckless driver.

last year produced "Dark Rapture," an adventure story of the Congo.

Cousin of President

The truck and the remains of a pleasure car, which rests along the northern edge of the Crouse "graveyard" and was used in the same expedition, appear definitely to have been used on one or more of those adventure trips.

Mr. Denis is a Belgian-born, Oxford-educated, British aviation veteran who made "Wild Cargo" with Frank Buck. His wife, Miss Roosevelt, is a cousin of both the Hyde Park and Oyster Bay Roosevelts. She once drove a light truck around the world with only another girl as a companion. The truck in the Crouse collection may well be the one used for that jaunt for under the black lettering about the Denis-Roosevelt expedition is an older inscription the top line of which says simply "Tella Roosevelt Expedition."

The motor, transmission, wheels and other parts of the truck have been sold off but the narrow side platforms and the raised platform on the top of the truck where motion picture cameras were placed are intact. The railing at the top of the truck was to provide a means of securing the motion picture cameras which they operated from a standing position as the truck rolled along.

How to Film Lions

Some of the couple's thrilling lion scenes were made through the simple device of fastening a dead zebra to the truck by a rope, dragging the zebra along the jungle and attracting a group of lions to it. As the lions ran along snapping and growling at the zebra, the Denises would photograph them from the top of the moving truck.

The latest Denis-Roosevelt expedition in the summer of 1939 covered wide stretches of Burma and also parts of Kenya and Uganda in Africa.

Names painted on the truck's sides, each accompanied by an approximate date of the truck's visit there between January, 1935, and the same month of the next year, read like a page from a geography or an African adventure story. Starting from New York the truck went to Brussels, Madrid, Fez, Sahara, Lake Tébéd, Ubang, Shari, River Congo, Mountains of the Moon, Nairobi, Kivu volcanoes, Iuri Forest, Uele, Cameroon, River Niger, Timbuctu, Sahara (Taneyrouf), Atlas mountains, Marrakesh, Tangier, Seville, Brussels and back to New York.

Used to Advertise Film

The truck and car came to the Crouse property several months ago from a Washington auto dealer. They were bought by Mr. Crouse for the parts he sold from them and slowly they are disappearing piece by piece. Mr. Crouse cannot trace the history of the two vehicles beyond the Washington motor company. There were long sheet metal license plates from Borneo attached to each of the machines when they came here.

A crumpled banner by the side of the car indicated the machine was used by a Washington theatre for street advertising of the film "Dark Rapture," a film the expedition helped produce.

The Gettysburg Times is indebted to Mrs. Elsie Sigmund Lewars for much of the information about the Denis-Roosevelt expedition. It was a party of friends of Mrs. Lewars that spotted the famous truck recently as they passed the Crouse property.

Worse Than Verdun, Says French Officer Of German Invasion

By H. TAYLOR HENRY

Paris, May 18 (AP)—Fleeing crowds of (three words censored) refugees from Belgium and northern France are streaming toward the interior while the French army meets the trip-hammer blows of the invading German shock forces.

"The fighting in this first of really modern battles has been terrific. Like nothing before in history."

A French officer who fought in the last war told me "there can be no comparison between this battle and the worst ones of the last war. Two hours of this is worse than two days of the battle for Verdun."

(Verdun was the greatest center of resistance to the German invasion during the World war and both the French and Germans suffered tremendous losses.)

Losses are reported (two words censored) heavy.

I have just returned to Paris from a week's stay along the sector of the front where the fighting is now heaviest.

For more than 70 miles I bicycled along roads packed with slowly plodding peasants and automobiles and convoys moving in the opposite direction.

FLASHES FROM THE WAR ZONE

Paris, May 18 (AP)—The French government, striving to combat Germany's admitted superiority in the air on the western battlefield, today ordered a 12-hour work day for all aviation industries, effective at once. Some air industries have been working at 10-hour, six-day week.

London, May 18 (AP)—The air ministry announced today ten German Junkers 87 bombers were shot down by nine Hurricane fighters in a single battle over France Friday.

London, May 18 (AP)—Exchange telegraph company, British news agency, reported in a dispatch from Zurich that railway connections between Basle, Switzerland, and St. Louis, in France, a short distance north, were blown up Friday night by French military engineers. The railway there parallels the Rhine near the juncture of Germany, France and Switzerland and the action was reported taken as a precaution against a German surprise attack on Switzerland.

Doorn, The Netherlands, May 18 (AP)—Two black uniformed guards of Adolf Hitler's personal bodyguard (Leibstandarte) have taken up posts before the manor of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II. Hitherto the Dutch gendarmerie has been responsible for the safety of the 1-year-old ex-ruler, who fled to Holland at the end of the World war. Berlin, May 18 (AP)—German forces entered Antwerp today and hoisted the swastika flag over the city hall after a fast-moving attack pierced the city's fortifications. D.N.B., official German news agency, announced this afternoon. Adolf Hitler's legions thus again out-marched the pace set by Kaiser Wilhelm's troops in 1914, for Antwerp in the World war held out for two months and five days. Outer fortifications of the important Belgian port, 28 miles north of Brussels, were reached Friday.

President Pardons Arctic Explorer

Port Chester, N. Y., May 18 (AP)

Nurses reported today that the aged Arctic explorer Frederick A. Cook, seriously ill from a stroke, received with a feeble "Thanks—happy" the news that he has been fully pardoned of a mail fraud conviction.

President Roosevelt granted the pardon Friday to the 74-year-old man whose claim to have discovered the North Pole was disputed for years.

After hearing the news, brought to him by Ralph Von Ahlefeldt, who requested presidential clemency, Doctor Cook lapsed back into semi-consciousness. He was stricken May 3.

He was convicted in 1923 on charges growing out of a Texas oil stock promotion venture. He served five years in Leavenworth and then was paroled.

Carlisle Business Leader Dies at 80

Robert R. Todd, one of Carlisle's most prominent civic and business leaders, died Friday afternoon at his home in the Bellaire apartments, Carlisle, following a heart attack. He was 80 years old, and a few years ago retired from the Carlisle council, where he held the distinction of never missing a council meeting during his twenty-four years as a councilman and president of that body.

A native of Frederick county, Maryland, he located in Carlisle 53 years ago, opening a small grocery. His trade grew and he branched out, so that when he abandoned the grocery business after 28 years in that time, he owned and operated five stores. About that time he became interested in the manufacture of rugs, and launched the Todd carpet mills in Carlisle, now operated by his sons.

WAR AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Pittsburgh, May 18 (AP)—War is bringing new hope to job seekers more than 40 years of age, reports W. N. Sprague, chairman of the "marketing committee" of the Western Pennsylvania Forty Plus club which seeks to place former executives in new positions. "Ever since the intensification of war last week," he said, "we have noticed an undercurrent of interest among employers in the advantage of having mature personnel to insure their staffs against decimation from a possible military draft."

of the class to be formed next fall. James B. Aunen, Gettysburg fire company president and a past president of the county association, was the master of ceremonies Friday evening. The program opened with the singing of "America" and prayer by the Rev. Fr. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church. The address of welcome was delivered by Burgess C. A. Heiges.

Special music was presented at intervals during the evening by this chorus of Gettysburg businessmen: Ralph Z. Oyler, George T. Raffensperger, Daniel J. Wolff, R. W. Wenz, Carl Menchey, Roy E. Zinn, H. H. Thomas, Dorsey Robert, A. E. Hutchison, J. M. Bender and T. U. Gelman, with the Rev. Howard S. Fox at the organ.

Cites Progress

Instructor Baker was presented by George A. McClellan, Gettysburg, a past president of the county association, who in his remarks called attention to the progress made by the five companies of Adams county in the last 18 years as an example of co-operation.

Mr. Baker responded with brief remarks in which he gave credit for the success of the school in this county to the county association and the pupils themselves.

The principal address was delivered by Judge W. C. Sheely who remarked in his introduction that the American flag was on display in the court room for the first time within his knowledge and called upon patriotic organizations to take notice of that fact. The firemen's school is one more proof of the value of the county firemen's association, the judge said, and declared the Adams county organization to be one of the best in the state. He assured the firemen "the people of the county are proud of you."

Then Judge Sheely referred to the firemen as important factors in preserving our democratic form of government and praised the work of the county companies in the Red Cross roll call last fall. He concluded with an expression of the hope that the fire companies "will continue the public service you have been giving."

A Move for Safer Night Driving

Mr. A. F. Hutchison of H. & H. Machine Shop says, "Car owners do not realize their lights depreciate rapidly. They lose their efficiency so gradually that it is hard to see the change, yet a car one year old has only two-thirds of its original lighting efficiency."

"Through no fault of the owner, air attacks the reflectors. They tarnish and no longer throw out the light they originally did. Dirt and moisture work in and make things worse. Bulbs get dirty outside and blacken inside from oxidation, often cutting the light in half."

"Many things will throw lights out of aim, such as rough roads, bumps and millions of jolts a car gets on the road. Lights out of aim not only make it difficult for the driver of the car, but are a menace to approaching traffic. These are some of the few things that happen to every car on the road today."

H. & H. Machine Shop has been appointed as a "Guide Light-house" by United Motors Service. The Guide Light-house Program is a move for safer night driving as United Motors Service plans to educate and equip thousands of service stations in every state to give Efficient headlamp service. It is very important to have headlamps checked for your safety as well as for the safety of your fellow motorist.

able tank columns, including some 80-ton machines so strong that no gun smaller than a French "75" could stop them, the French indicated they had been able to hold the fight to the same general area as Friday—the Avesnes-Vervins-Rethel-Sedan bulge which the nazis had pushed through the little Maginot line.

Against the German power thrusts the French threw fierce counter attacks seeking to halt the invaders already between 35 and 40 miles inside the French frontier.

Great Britain announced her royal air force again had penetrated western Germany to bomb military objectives.

All Britain was grave. The British press called it the "darkest hour" since 1918 when allied armies faced defeat at the hands of the driving armies of imperial Germany.

London's gloom was deepened by a war office announcement that British troops had withdrawn to new positions west of the Belgian capital. There was no British confirmation, however, of the Berlin claim that nazis troops had occupied Brussels.

Dutch Islands Abandoned

Announcement that Dutch and French forces had abandoned the islands of Beveland and Walcheren in Zeeland province, last stand of the Dutch, heightened the foreboding of Britons. Official sources sought to stiffen British morale by saying the country had faced such situations before and was able to do it again.

The German high command announced the navy had mined enemy ports in Africa.

The government of Prime Minister Churchill was reported trying a new, more friendly approach to better relations with Soviet Russia.

In the Balkans, where there was no relaxation of the fear of war, there and elsewhere in Europe, foreigners scurried to repatriate themselves. Italians in Rumania were advised by their legation to return home.

The premier of Thailand (Siam) Luang Bipl Songgram, cabled the 14-year-old King Ananda in Switzerland the suggestion that he either go to the United States to continue his education or return home.

Rumania began a drive anew against "fifth columnists"; Greece called another class of reserves to the colors and Yugoslavia sought to find out what help she could expect from Greece if Italy should attack her.

21 Nations Protest

In the western hemisphere the 21 American republics gave unanimous approval to a declaration of protest against nazi Germany's invasions of neutral countries.

Circulated by Uruguay, the declaration got a reaction of "unreserved adhesion" from the United States.

All over the United States leaders and officials voiced support for the greatest peacetime preparedness drive in the history of the republic. Congress cut corners to speed a $1,182,000,000 defense program toward house and senate approval.

Former President Hoover and Alfred M. Landon, former republican presidential nominee, backed the defense program of President Roosevelt.

Bitter fighting was reported again in the war in China. The Chinese claimed they had crushed the main Japanese force in central China and had captured Tsoyang, Japanese base, after a day of fierce, hand-to-hand struggle.

the York Springs school district also was given a tentative inspection. Final inspections were made of the budgets for Oxford, Highland and Reading townships and Arendtsville and East Berlin boroughs. Those budgets will be signed today and forwarded to Harrisburg for final approval.

Fined $25 After Auto Hits Pole

Russell K. Fanus, 23, Gardners R. 2, was fined $25 and ordered to pay the costs on a charge of reckless driving Friday night by Justice of the Peace Leo A. Storm. Mr. Pleasant township, after Fanus had wrecked his coach-type automobile against a telephone pole about a mile east of Bonneville on the Hanover highway. The accident occurred about 11 o'clock.

Fanus is reported to have been driving west when his car ran off the right edge of the highway, mounted a two-foot embankment and then struck the pole with the side of the car. Total damage was estimated at about $150 but Fanus and a companion escaped injury.

The two occupants are reported to have left the scene soon after the crash. They were located in a nearby roadhouse by Officer George J. Evanko, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, who investigated the accident and then filed the reckless driving count.

2 Vehicles in Local Graveyard Linked to African Expedition

last year produced "Dark Rapture," an adventure story of the Congo.

The truck and the remains of a pleasure car, which rests along the northern edge of the Crouse "graveyard" and was used in the same expedition, appear definitely to have been used on one or more of those adventure trips.

Mr. Denis is a Belgian-born, Oxford-educated, British aviation veteran who made "Wild Cargo" with Frank Buck, his wife, Miss Rosevelt, is a cousin of both the Hyde Park and Oyster Bay Roosevelts. She once drove a light truck around the world with only another girl as a companion. The truck in the Crouse collection may well be the one used for that jaunt for under the black lettering about the Denis-Roosevelt expedition is an older inscription the top line of which says simply "Leila Roosevelt Expedition."

The motor, transmission, wheels and other parts of the truck have been sold off but the narrow side platforms and the raised platform on the top of the truck where motion picture cameras were placed are intact. The railing at the rear of the truck was to provide a means of securing the motion picture cameras which they operated from a standing position as the truck rolled along.

How to Film Lions

Some of the couple's thrilling lion scenes were made through the simple device of fastening a dead zebra to the truck by a rope, dragging the zebra along the jungle and attracting a group of lions to it. As the lions ran along snapping and growling at the zebra, the Denises would photograph them from the top of the moving truck.

The latest Denis-Roosevelt expedition in the summer of 1939 covered wide stretches of Burma and also parts of Kenya and Uganda in Africa.

Names painted on the truck's sides, each accompanied by an approximate date of the truck's visit there between January, 1935, and the same month of the next year, read like a page from a geography or an African adventure story. Starting from New York the truck went to Brussels, Madrid, Fez, Sahara, Lake Tchaud, Ubangi, Shari, River Congo, Mountains of the Moon, Nairobi, Kivu volcanoes, Ituri Forest, Uele, Cameroon, River Niger, Timbuctu, Sahara (Tanzerang), Atlas mountains, Marrakesh, Tangier, Seville, Brussels and back to New York.

Used to Advertise Film

The truck and car came to the Crouse property several months ago from a Washington auto dealer. They were bought by Mr. Crouse for the parts he could sell from them and slowly they are disappearing piece by piece. Mr. Crouse cannot trace the history of the two vehicles beyond the Washington motor company. There were long sheet metal license plates from Borneo attached to each of the machines when they came here.

A crumpled banner by the side of the car indicated the machine was used by a Washington theatre for street advertising of the film "Dark Rapture," a film the expedition helped produce.

The Gettysburg Times is indebted to Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars for much of the information about the Denis-Roosevelt expedition. It was a party of friends of Mrs. Lewars that spotted the famous truck recently as they passed the Crouse property.

Worse Than Verdun, Says French Officer Of German Invasion

By H. TAYLOR HENRY

Paris, May 18 (AP)—Fleeing crowds of (three words censored) refugees from Belgium and north-eastern France are streaming toward the interior while the French army meets the trip-hammer blows of the invading German shock forces.

The fighting in this first of really modern battles has been terrific, like nothing before in history.

A French officer who fought in the last war told me "there can be no comparison between this battle and the worst ones of the last war. Two hours of this is worse than two days of the battle for Verdun."

(Verdun was the greatest center of resistance to the German invasion during the World war and both the French and Germans suffered tremendous losses.)

Losses are reported (two words censored) heavy.

I have just returned to Paris from a week's stay along the sector of the front where the fighting is now heaviest.

For more than 70 miles I bicycled along roads packed with slowly plodding peasants and automobiles and convoys moving in the opposite direction.

FLASHES FROM THE WAR ZONE

Paris, May 18 (AP)—The French government, striving to combat Germany's admitted superiority in the air on the western battlefield, today ordered a 12-hour work day for all aviation industries, effective at once. Some air industries have been working at 10-hour, six-day week.

London, May 18 (AP)—The air ministry announced today ten German Junkers 87 bombers were shot down by nine Hurricane fighters in a single battle over France Friday.

London, May 18 (AP)—Exchange telegraph company, British news agency, reported in a dispatch from Zurich that railway connections between Basle, Switzerland, and St. Louis, in France, a short distance north, were blown up Friday night by French military engineers. The railway there parallels the Rhine near the juncture of Germany, France and Switzerland and the action was reported taken as a precaution against a German surprise attack on Switzerland.

Doorn, The Netherlands, May 18 (AP)—Two black uniformed guards of Adolf Hitler's personal bodyguard (Leibstandarte) have taken up posts before the manor of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II. Hitherto the Dutch gendarmerie has been responsible for the safety of the 1-year-old ex-ruler, who fled to Holland at the end of the World war. Now Hitler's crack personal troops have been assigned to this duty at Doorn by the fuhrer himself.

Berlin, May 18 (By Radio) (AP)—The German high command announced today that 108 allied airplanes had been shot down in the last 24 hours' fighting with a loss of only 26 German planes. The German air force bombed lines of communication in the allies' rear.

Berlin, May 18 (AP)—German forces entered Antwerp today and hoisted the swastika flag over the city hall after a fast-moving attack pierced the city's fortifications. D.N.B., official German news agency, announced this afternoon. Adolf Hitler's legions thus again out-raced the pace set by Kaiser Wilhelm's troops in 1914, for Antwerp in the World war held out for two months and five days. Outer fortifications of the important Belgian port, 28 miles north of Brussels, were reached Friday.

President Pardons Arctic Explorer

Port Chester, N. Y., May 18 (AP)—Nurses reported today that the aged Arctic explorer Frederick A. Cook, seriously ill from a stroke, received with a feeble "thanks—happy" the news that he has been fully pardoned of a mail fraud conviction.

President Roosevelt granted the pardon Friday to the 74-year-old man whose claim to have discovered the North Pole was disputed for years.

After hearing the news, brought to him by Ralph Von Ahlefeldt who requested presidential clemency, Doctor Cook lapsed back into semi-consciousness. He was stricken May 3.

He was convicted in 1923 on charges growing out of a Texas oil stock promotion venture. He served five years in Leavenworth and then was paroled.

Carlisle Business Leader Dies at 80

Robert R. Todd, one of Carlisle's most prominent civic and business leaders, died Friday afternoon at his home in the Bellaire apartments, Carlisle, following a heart attack. He was 80 years old, and a few years ago retired from the Carlisle council, where he held the distinction of never missing a council meeting during his twenty-four years as a councilman and president of that body.

A native of Frederick county, Maryland, he located in Carlisle 53 years ago, opening a small grocery. His trade grew and he branched out, so that when he abandoned the grocery business after 28 years in that line, he owned and operated five stores. About that time he became interested in the manufacture of rugs, and launched the Todd carpet mills in Carlisle, now operated by his sons.

WAR AID UNEMPLOYMENT

Pittsburgh, May 18 (AP)—War is bringing new hope to job seekers more than 40 years of age, reports W. N. Sprague, chairman of the "marketing committee" of the Western Pennsylvania Forty Plus club which seeks to place former executives in new positions. "Ever since the intensification of war last week," he said, "we have noticed an undercurrent of interest among employers in the advantage of having mature personnel to insure their staffs against decimation from a possible military draft."

Wesley, Mass., May 18 (AP)—Harvard's attempted blitzkrieg on Wesley college's annual boat night ceremony on Lake Waban came to a dismal end Friday night when the Wesley crew coach dispersed the attacking flotilla single-handed.

The ceremonies had just begun, with the first boat passing the reviewing stand, when a burst of fireworks disclosed about 30 uninvited Harvard students in canoes in the middle of the lake. They had a float, too, featuring Venus and Adonis.

As the 5,000 spectators gasped, the announcer on the public address system stated disapprovingly: "Unfortunately, this is a public lake and there is nothing we can do about it."

Miss Harriet Clark, the crew coach, did do something about it, however. She put out in the crew motor launch and swooped in, out and around the invading flotilla, until the Harvards, fearful of being capsized, hurried to shore in the discomfiting glare of searchlights which had been brought to bear on them.

The Harvards sent ominous "fight" yells over the water, but the Wesley girls just boomed right back and cheered for Yale.

Gelbert has been a utility infielder for the Senators for the last few years but has been eager for a career as a pitcher. After Cleveland had blasted three Washington hurlers to pile up a 15-0 lead in the game at Cleveland Friday, Gelbert was sent to the mound in the sixth. Charley performed creditably in his debut yielding three runs on four hits and a walk.

New Goodyear Tire Announced by Dealer

Important to the owners of not-so-new automobiles, who may be thinking about new tires to insure themselves trouble-free Memorial Day week-end holiday trips, is announcement by officials of the Gettysburg Auto Parts company, local Goodyear dealer, of the company's new All-American tire, priced within the reach of 70 per cent of the majority market of users.

The tire is described as full-size and bears a lifetime guarantee without time or mileage limitations. These are the sizes: 6.00-16, 5.25-17, 5.50-17 and 4.75-19/5.00-19, so you can see that it is tailor-made to fit a lot of cars now operating for several years.

The new All-American has the same high-carbon, high-tensile steel wire for beads as is used in all Goodyear passenger car tires. Its body is made with low-stretch Superwrist cord, which has even higher tensile strength than did quality tires of two years ago, officials of the local firm pointed out. In addition, there is a double cord breaker of high tensile strength to give greater protection against bruises.

Tread compounds are of time-tested reputation, providing long time abrasion resistance, while the tread design is new and known as multiple-rib, assuring long, even wear, easy steering and side slip protection.

At the same time every possible economy has been effected in manufacture without sacrificing essential safety factors, a company spokesman said, so the tire should prove popular with people who want the

Local Salesman Visits Ford Rouge Plant

David Oyler, of Gettysburg, local Ford dealer, is shown here standing beside a new Mercury 8, on the "Roads of the World" at the Ford Rotunda in Dearborn, Michigan. The Rotunda is the hospitality building for the Ford Rouge plant, largest single industrial plant in the world, which he visited recently. Prior to his trip to Dearborn, Mr. Oyler spent a week in the Chester branch of the Ford Motor company.

Gelbert Sent to Mound by Senators
Charley Gelbert, freshman football coach at Gettysburg college, realized a fond ambition Friday afternoon when he was given a three-inning pitching assignment for the Washington Senators by Manager Buckey Harris.

Gelbert has been a utility infielder for the Senators for the last few years but has been eager for a career as a pitcher. After Cleveland had blasted three Washington hurlers to pile up a 15-0 lead in the game at Cleveland Friday, Gelbert was sent to the mound in the sixth. Charley performed creditably in his debut yielding three runs on four hits and a walk.

New Goodyear Tire Announced by Dealer

Important to the owners of not-so-new automobiles, who may be thinking about new tires to insure themselves trouble-free Memorial Day week-end holiday trips, is an announcement by officials of the Gettysburg Auto Parts company, local Goodyear dealer, of the company's new All-American tire, priced within the reach of 70 per cent of the majority market of users.

The tire is described as full-size and bears a lifetime guarantee without time or mileage limitations. These are the sizes: 6.00-16, 5.25-17/5.50-17 and 4.75-19/5.00-19, so you can see that it is tailor-made to fit a lot of cars now operating for several years.

The new All-American has the same high-carbon, high-tensile steel wire for beads as is used in all Goodyear passenger car tires. Its body is made with low-stretch Supertwist cord, which has even higher tensile strength than did quality tires of two years ago, officials of the local firm pointed out. In addition, there is a double cord breaker of high tensile strength to give greater protection against bruises.

Tread compounds are of time-tested reputation, providing long time abrasion resistance, while the tread design is new and known as multiple-rib, assuring long, even wear, easy steering and side slip protection.

At the same time every possible economy has been effected in manufacture without sacrificing essential safety factors, a company spokesman said, so the tire should prove popular with people who want the product of a recognized manufacturer at lowest possible initial cost.

Today's Talk
By George Matthew Adams
THIS NEWSPAPER OF OURS
I BELIEVE that in our daily newspapers we have the greatest Champions of freedom and democracy ever devised. Keep people rightly informed and they will work out their problems all right.
There are no newspapers in all the world comparable to those published on this side of the Atlantic. Take this war, for instance. We know more about what is happening in Europe than those who live there! And all because we believe in printing the facts as nearly and as accurately as we can get them.
The freedom of the press is Freedom's and Democracy's one great defender. Take this one thing away and these things held most dear in human life would vanish almost overnight.
During the past few days I have been privileged to talk with scores of editors and publishers from all parts of the United States and Canada. No more intelligent and progressive thinking men exist. The American newspapers are the pride of the world!
We as daily readers, are prone to overlook this wonderful opportunity to get the news of the world in so efficient a manner. Where else than on this continent can editors speak their minds in such open and uncensored fashion? Abolish, or lessen this freedom of the press in ever so small a manner, and the freedom and rights of all are at once endangered.
The columns of this newspaper—and every newspaper, as well, are always open for your expressions as a reader and supporter of its enterprise. A free press is nurtured in the very roots of all our growth and civilization. The Bill of Rights would be futile without it.
No other medium gets so close to its readers. No other medium is so trusted. The newspapers' faults are merely the faults of us all. We are reflected in them all. We help to make our newspapers what they are. They remain, however, as our champions at court—the defenders of all that we hold dear, or worth while in life!

JUST FOLKS
by
EDGAR A. GUEST
PARENTS
Parents are fathers and mothers who see The faults in their children, whatever they be. They're grown ups who muller when something's amiss:
"Well, we didn't teach them such conduct as this!" And parents are people who frown at: "I won't!" Yet are constantly telling us: "No! No!" and "Don't!"
Parents are head shakers signaling "No!" Whenever at supper there's talk of a show. The foods that are wholesome they force us to eat And tell us unhealthful is anything sweet. They store all the jams on the uppermost shelves. A way of reserving the stuff for themselves.
Parents are people, believe me or not, Who think that for spending a dime is a lot. They're certain the children have all gone astray. That manners and graces went out in their day. They scold and they threaten our jackets to dust. And wish that they needn't, but feel that they must.
If ever I grow to a parent myself I'll keep all the jam on the handiest shelf. I'll try to remember the boyhood I had. And not tell my children the nice things are bad. I'll pass them the pie and not force them to wait. Till they've eaten the spinach they've left on the plate.

The Literary Guidepost
By John Selby
Some fiction of all sorts—
READERS above the hammock and chocolate bar stage will find something worth their while in a study of heroism and heroism called "The Brave and the Blind" by its author, Michael Blankfort. This is the story of the Alcazar by the Spanish Loyalists, as told through the minds and actions of a group of characters invented by the author. The events are real, however, and although the author disclaims any effort at minute historical accuracy, the reader will emerge with a far better idea of the Spanish war than he had before beginning. (Bobbs-Merrill; $2.50)
There is a good deal of death and such in "White She Sleeps" as well, but Ethel Lina White is writing an excellent mystery rather than a study of heroism. Most of the excitement of this who-done-it is due to Miss White's ability to sustain suspense. (Harpers; $2)
Helen Bailey's "Give Thanks to Death" is another mystery, this one rather generously brushed with horror. It is short, makes its points briskly, moves with speed. (Crime Club; $2)
And of all things, Her Highness the Rance of Sarawak is again among us as a practitioner of fiction. The Rance has published some half dozen novels in England; this one, "A Star Fell," concerns a mission-taught peasant of Sarawak whose fatal mistake it is to believe literally what he has been taught by the missionaries. (Harrison-Hill; $2.50)
Barbara Black's "Doorbells" will not strain the thinking apparatus of its readers, but it has a good deal of amusing material in it, told from a quite different angle. From the viewpoint, to be specific, of a young woman who takes to peddling because she must eat, and who finds herself immersed in the life and problems of a typical American town as a result. (Coward-McCann; $2)
"River of Eden" is more serious. Shirley Seifert has chosen the period before the Revolution, the Mississippi River is her setting, and her narrative is a just balance between the typical historical novel and the typical novel. (Mills; $2.50) And finally there is an expert Western by B. M. Bower which he calls "Man on Horseback"—some day some writer of bang-bangs will put his hero in a Ford and another cycle will be ended. Mr. Bower is again telling the story of the two young things kept apart by pride, misunderstanding, cunningness, and so forth. He does a slick job of it, too. (Little, Brown; $2)
Mrs. Henry Knibbsch, Mrs. C. P. Daley, Mrs. Lila Craig, Mrs. Harry Holtzworth, Mrs. Charles Dougherty, Mrs. Roy Zinn, Mrs. John Walter, Mrs. Charles Willis, Mrs. Calvin Gilbert and Mrs. Charles Williams.
Among the guests at a bridge luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. J. Clair Sowers at her home in Baltimore were Mrs. John Brehm, Mrs. Mark K. Eckert, Mrs. A. B. Plank, Mrs. Walter H. Danforth, Mrs. John A. Munster, Mrs. Wayne Keel, Mrs. H. M. Hartman and Miss Kate Gilbert.

HIGH TIDE
By Frances Hanna
YESTERDAY: Jan puts Johnny in his place. She is pleased when Lance finds Derek a good listener, although "too close-mouthed" about himself.
Chapter Six
No Work No Eat
"You asked Derek not to tell me about his suicide attempt?" repeated Lance. "Because of my reaction? Don't be a silly goose, Sis. In my opinion it takes a lot more courage to live than die. I told him so, but he didn't agree. Please, honey, don't ever let anything like that worry you. I know when I get those fits of depression I say I'd rather be dead, but I don't mean it. Not so long as I have you. I guess I just have to let off steam when the pressure gets too high."
She dropped to her knees beside his chair and laid her cheek against his hand. "He wants to stay here with us, Lance. I've got a crazy idea I can do something for him, read—just him, somehow. Have I a crusader's complex, do you think?"
"A too developed maternal complex, I'd say. You always did drag in stray cats and pups when you were a little kid. Mother used to have a fit, but Dad always made up excuses for you."
"It seems like more than four years since—"
"I'm glad they went before this happened to me. It would have hurt them so." She sensed his withdrawal from the pain of remembering. He went on: "It doesn't seem very provident to keep the fellow here, Jan. We have so little as it is and we've talked of taking in another roomer this summer."
"Lance, will it be all right if I promise to make him useful?" she pleaded. "I'll try to make him a paying proposition, if I can. There's jobs to be had around here with summer coming on. Maybe Captain Tupples will take him on one of his fishing barks."
Lance patted her wind-limbed hair. "All right, baby, if it'll make you happy to have a stray man to fret over."
"Johnny was so mean about it this morning," she said in a little-girl voice against the woolly blanket. "He suspects Derek of everything from larceny to mayhem."
"Well, I hope Johnny isn't right," Lance sighed.
She looked up, defiance in her deep blue eyes. "You don't think he's a criminal, Lance?"
"I don't know anything to think, Jan. But your man had better make good or Johnny and I will both annihilate him!"
Put on the defensive she deliberately submerged any doubts she herself had. "He's a fine person," she declared. "I'll prove it to you. Wait and see."
She stirred to action. She would find Derek and tell him he had to get a job right away.
But Derek was nowhere in the house, she found. He must have gone for a walk, and here she was in a mood to talk to him without mincing words. Later she might not be, her moods were so evanescent.
Disturbed, nervous, not nearly so sure as she'd tried to make Lance believe, she sought the grand piano and the soothing touch of its keys. Although she did not practice enough to play really well, her fingers were light and facile and drew comfort for her from the classics she loved. In the semi-dark of the familiar, friendly living room she dropped to the piano bench and let her fingers drift into the sad beauty of Schubert's Serenade.
Smooth Task
Enrapt, singing the words softly to herself, she didn't hear the door open nor did she see Derek come in. When the last tone sighed into silence she looked up and saw him. The expression on his face startled her, hurt her in some vague manner she could not comprehend: it was an expression of torment, of agonizing frustration. Then a smooth, blank mask covered it and she felt as if, for a fleeting moment, she had been permitted to look into his soul.
"Derek," she began. "I have something to say to you—"
"But he fled upstairs with the panicky step of a man pursued by ghosts, leaving her alone with the echo of Schubert."
Jan emptied the contents of her coin purse on the kitchen table. Eighty-nine cents and two three-cent stamps. "And four people to feed," she wailed softly to herself. "Johnny's rent is due tomorrow, but that doesn't help out tonight. And I ought to get Derek a razor and toothbrush and comb. I suppose I could borrow money from Nora if she gets home in time, but I hate to do that. I guess I'll make a meat loaf. Hamburger's cheap enough." Lifting her old black sweater from the hook on the kitchen door, she numbed to Neptune. "Fifty-five cents ought to do it. I've got plenty of potatoes, butter, bread and coffee. Oh, yes, and a can of peaches for dessert. I wonder why he looked like that and why did he run away? Is my playing as bad as all that?"
Frank had his big fist lifted to knock as she pulled open the front door. A delightful grin creased his broad face. "I'm bringing pay for last night's feast," he said, extending a newspaper-wrapped bundle to her. "Yellow tail, and a big one!"
"I could hug you for this," Jan cried. "I'm down to hamburger tonight. Frank, this is grand. Lance

PANHANDLING BEAR SHOT BY WOMAN
Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 18 (AP)—Alex the bear, whose career ranged from sideshow performances to panhandling in the Pocono mountains, is dead—victim of a woman.
Miss Helen Kessler, 23, locked in a mirror at her rural Thornhurst home Friday and saw the image of Alex as he ambled upon her porch. She feared he would break in, and killed him with a shotgun.
Alex turned to panhandling after his release recently from the Wilkes-Barre zoo, which acquired him from a carnival. Mountain travelers told of being stopped by him and solicited for food and drink.

No. 139 — In Christ Episcopal Churchyard
DUE to circumstances beyond our control this column did not appear on Saturday, May 11, 1940. We regret that it was necessary to break our record and miss this one link. However, we will take care to see that it does not happen again.
In the column for May 4, 1940, we began our survey in Christ Episcopal churchyard. The first soldier we mentioned was Thomas Godfrey, and at this time we want to give you some additional information pertaining to this man. Buried with Thomas Godfrey in this cemetery are the following members of his family:
1. "William Godfrey/Died August 20, 1814/Aged 34 years."
Note: A son of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the Revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.
2. "In memory of/William Godfrey/who departed this life/March 31, 1813/Aged 36 years 2 months/and 8 days."
Note: We are a little doubtful regarding this man's place on the family tree. At the present time we are unable to make any definite statement regarding him.
3. "In memory of/Hannah/wife of William Godfrey/who departed this life/June 9, 1819/Aged 77 years 9 months/7 and 3 days."
Note: It would seem from the inscription on this woman's stone that she was the wife of William Godfrey, but when you consider her age and the date of her death this would appear to be almost impossible. If she was married to either of the William Godfreys mentioned above, she was much older than her husband, or else the data given on the marker is incorrect. We have no way of knowing the correct answer.
4. "Stephen Poult/son of Thomas and Mary Godfrey/Died June 17, 1817."
Note: This evidently was a son of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.
5. "Hannah Stoner/daughter of Thomas and Mary Godfrey/Died July 15, 1813/Aged 37 years."
Note: A daughter of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the Revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.

ALTHOUGH at the present time the grave of Thomas Godfrey's wife is unmarked it is highly possible that she is buried beside her husband, and that the marker at her grave has simply gone the way of many other tombstones, in other words it has disappeared. We do know, however, that her name was "Mary" and we have reason to believe that before her marriage to Thomas Godfrey she was "Mary Stoner" or "Mary Poult." Both are old family names in this section and both are listed as members of the Christ church parish in the church records.
At this time we wish to correct a mistake in our column for May 4, 1940. In giving the inscription from the stone marking the grave of Revolutionary Soldier Thomas Godfrey we gave his age incorrectly. The inscription should read as follows:
"In memory of/Thomas Godfrey/who departed this life/the 8th day of November/1831/in the 62nd year of his age."
Since Thomas Godfrey was only sixty-two years old at the time of his death in 1831 it would have been impossible for him to have taken part in the French and Indian war as we incorrectly stated in the column previously mentioned. It is possible, however, that the Thomas Godfrey listed in the Pennsylvania Archives as having taken part in the French and Indian war was the father of our Thomas Godfrey, and that he is buried in this cemetery in the Godfrey plot in an unmarked grave. Due to the great age of this graveyard, it is entirely possible that countless numbers of people are buried here in unmarked graves, and since we have no proof to the contrary, we will assume that Thomas Godfrey, the elder, is buried here with his son. If any of our readers can add anything to this far from complete sketch of the Godfrey family we would appreciate any help.

BURIED in an unmarked grave in this cemetery is Colonel Archibald McGrew of French and Indian war as well as Revolutionary fame. Strange to say the McGrew family were members of the Church of England or Episcopallians.
Robert McGrew was born in Scotland or Ireland in 1765. He was married to Isabella —? in —? in County Tyrone, Ireland. In company with his family of five sons and two grandchildren, Robert and Isabella McGrew, emigrated to America in 1799-27. Robert and Isabella McGrew are buried in Chestnut Hill graveyard in this county.

Robert and Isabella McGrew were the parents of the following children:

1. John McGrew — born in 1790 in County Tyrone, Ireland — died 1875 — married Elizabeth —?
2. Finley McGrew — born —? — died in America 1875 — married Elizabeth Laurin.
3. William McGrew — born —? — died —? — married —?
4. Alexander McGrew — born —? — died —? — married Catherine —?
5. James McGrew — born —? — died —? — married —?

Archibald McGrew was the son of John and Elizabeth McGrew and it is quite evident that his parents did not accompany his grandparents, Robert and Isabella McGrew, when they emigrated to America. At any rate Robert and Isabella McGrew, brought with them to America their two grandchildren, Archibald and Catherine McGrew, issue of their son, John McGrew.
There will be more about the McGrew family next week.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

THIS NEWSPAPER OF YOURS

I BELIEVE that in our daily newspapers we have the greatest Champions of freedom and democracy ever devised. Keep people rightly informed and they will work out their problems all right.

There are no newspapers in all the world comparable to those published on this side of the Atlantic. Take this war, for instance. We know more about what is happening in Europe than those who live there! And all because we believe in printing the facts as nearly and as accurately as we can get them.

The freedom of the press is Freedom's and Democracy's one great defender. Take this one thing away and these things held most dear in human life would vanish almost overnight.

During the past few days I have been privileged to talk with scores of editors and publishers from all parts of the United States and Canada. No more intelligent and progressive thinking men exist. The American newspapers are the pride of the world!

We as daily readers, are prone to overlook this wonderful opportunity to get the news of the world in so efficient a manner. Where else than on this continent can editors speak their minds in such open and uncensored fashion? Abolish, or lessen this freedom of the press in ever so small a manner, and the freedom and rights of all are at once endangered.

The columns of this newspaper—and every newspaper, as well, are always open for your expressions as a reader and supporter of its enterprise. A free press is nurtured in the very roots of all our growth and civilization. The Bill of Rights would be futile without it.

No other medium gets so close to its readers. No other medium is so trusted. The newspapers' faults are merely the faults of us all. We are reflected in them all. We help to make our newspapers what they are. They remain, however, as our champions at court—the defenders of all that we hold dear, or worth while in life!

JUST FOLKS

PARENTS

Parents are fathers and mothers who see The faults in their children, whatever they be. They're grown ups who matter when something's amiss:

"Well, we didn't teach them such conduct as this!" And parents are people who frown at: "I won't!" Yet are constantly telling us: "No! No!" and "Don't!"

Parents are head shakers signaling "No!" Whenever at supper there's talk of a show. The foods that are wholesome they force us to eat And tell us unhealthful is anything sweet. They store all the jams on the uppermost shelves. A way of reserving the stuff for themselves.

Parents are people, believe me or not, Who think that for spending a dime is a lot. They're certain the children have all gone astray. That manners and graces went out in their day. They scold and they threaten our jackets to dust And wish that they needn't, but feel that they must.

If ever I grow to a parent myself I'll keep all the jam on the handiest shelf. I'll try to remember the boyhood I had And not tell my children the nice things are bad. I'll pass them the pie and not force them to wait Till they've eaten the spinach they've left on the plate.

The Literary Guidepost

By John Selby

Some fiction of all sorts—

READERS above the hammock and chocolate bar stage will find something worth their while in a study of heroism and heroes called "The Brave and the Blind" by its author, Michael Blankfort. This is the siege of the Alcazar by the Spanish Loyalists, as told through the minds and actions of a group of characters invented by the author. The events are real, however, and although the author disclaims any effort at minute historical accuracy, the reader will emerge with a far better idea of the Spanish war than he had before beginning. (Bobbs-Merrill; $2.50)

There is a good deal of death and such in "While She Sleeps" as well, but Ethel Lina White is writing an excellent mystery rather than a study of heroism. Most of the excitement of this who-done-it is due to Miss White's ability to sustain suspense. (Harpers; $2) Hilea Bailey's "Give Thanks to Death" is another mystery, this one rather generously brushed with horror. It is short, makes its points briskly, moves with speed. (Crime Club; $2)

And of all things, Her Highness the Rancee of Sarawak is again among us as a practitioner of fiction. The Rancee has published some half dozen novels in England; this one, "A Star Fell," concerns a mission-taught peasant of Sarawak whose fatal mistake it is to believe literally what he has been taught by the missionaries. (Harrison-Hilton; $2.50)

Barbara Black's "Doorbells" will not strain the thinking apparatus of its readers, but it has a good deal of amusing material in it, told from a quite different angle. From the viewpoint, to be specific, of a young woman who takes to peddling because she must eat, and who finds herself immersed in the life and problems of a typical American town as a result. (Coward-McCann; $2)

"River of Eden" is more serious. Shirley Selfert has chosen the period before the Revolution, the Mississippi River is her setting, and her narrative is a just balance between the typical historical novel and the typical novel. (Mill; $2.50) And finally there is an expert Western by B. M. Bower which he calls "Man on Horseback"—some day some writer of bang-bangs will put his hero in a Ford and another cycle will be ended. Mr. Bower is again telling the story of the two young things kept apart by pride, misunderstanding, cussedness, and so forth. He does a slick job of it, too. (Little, Brown; $2)

Mrs. Henry Kalbfleisch, Mrs. C. F. Daley, Mrs. Lila Craig, Mrs. Harry Holtzworth, Mrs. Charles Dougherty, Mrs. Roy Zinn, Mrs. John Walter, Mrs. Charles Wills, Mrs. Calvin Gilbert and Mrs. Charles Williams.

Among the guests at a bridge luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. J. Clair Sowers at her home in Baltimore were Mrs. John Brehm, Mrs. Mark K. Eckert, Mrs. A. B. Plank, Mrs. Walter H. Danforth, Mrs. John A. Mumper, Mrs. Wayne Keet, Mrs. H. M. Hartman and Miss Kate Gilbert.

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Jan puts Johnny in his place. She is pleased when Lance finds Derek a good listener, although "too close-mouthed" about himself.

Chapter Six
No Work No Eat

"You asked Derek not to tell me about his suicide attempt!" repeated Lance. "Because of my reaction? Don't be a silly goose, Sis. In my opinion it takes a lot more courage to live than die. I told him so, but he didn't agree. Please, honey, don't ever let anything like that worry you. I know when I get those fits of depression I say I'd rather be dead, but I don't mean it. Not so long as I have you. I guess I just have to let off steam when the pressure gets too high."

She dropped to her knees beside his chair and laid her cheek against his hand. "He wants to stay here with us, Lance. I've got a crazy idea I can do something for him, read just him, somehow. Have I a crusader's complex, do you think?"

"A too developed maternal complex, I'd say. You always did drag in stray cats and pups when you were a little kid. Mother used to have a fit, but Dad always made up excuses for you."

"It seems like more than four years since—"

"I'm glad they went before this happened to me. It would have hurt them so." She sensed his withdrawal from the pain of remembering. He went on: "It doesn't seem very provident to keep the fellow here, Jan. We have so little as it is and we've talked of taking in another roomer this summer."

"Lance, will it be all right if I promise to make him useful?" she pleaded. "I'll try to make him a paying proposition, if I can. There's jobs to be had around here with summer coming on. Maybe Captain Tupples will take him on one of his fishing barks."

Lance patted her wind-tumbled hair. "All right, baby, if it'll make you happy to have a stray man to fret over."

"Johnny was so mean about it this morning," she said in a little-girl voice against the woolly blanket. "He suspects Derek of everything from larceny to mayhem."

"Well, I hope Johnny isn't right," Lance sighed.

She looked up, defiance in her deep blue eyes. "You don't think he's a criminal, Lance?"

"I don't know anything to think, Jan. But your man had better make good or Johnny and I will both annihilate him!"

Put on the defensive she deliberately submerged any doubts she herself had. "He's a fine person," she declared. "I'll prove it to you. Wait and see."

She stirred to action. She would find Derek and tell him he had to get a job right away.

But Derek was nowhere in the house, she found. He must have gone for a walk, and here she was in a mood to talk to him without mincing words. Later she might not be, her moods were so evanescent.

Disturbed, nervous, not nearly so sure as she'd tried to make Lance believe, she sought the grand piano and the soothing touch of its keys. Although she did not practice enough to play really well, her fingers were light and facile and drew comfort for her from the classics she loved. In the semi-dusk of the familiar, friendly living room she dropped to the piano bench and let her fingers drift into the sad beauty of Schubert's Serenade.

Smooth Talk

Enrapt, singing the words softly to herself, she didn't hear the door open nor did she see Derek come in. When the last note sighed into silence she looked up and saw him. The expression on his face startled her, hurt her in some vague manner she could not comprehend: It was an expression of torment, of agonizing frustration. Then a smooth, blank mask covered it and she felt as if, for a fleeting moment, she had been permitted to look into his soul.

"Derek," she began, "I have something to say to you—"

But he fled upstairs with the panicky step of a man pursued by ghosts, leaving her alone with the echo of Schubert.

Jan emptied the contents of her coin purse on the kitchen table. Eighty-nine cents and two thirteen-cent stamps. "And four people to feed," she wailed softly to herself. "Johnny's rent is due tomorrow, but that doesn't help out tonight. And I ought to get Derek a razor and toothbrush and comb. I suppose I could borrow money from Nora if she gets home in time, but I hate to do that. I guess I'll make a meat loaf. Hamburger's cheap enough."

Lifting her old black sweater from the hook on the kitchen door, she mumbled to Neptune. "Thirty-five cents ought to do it. I've got plenty of potatoes, butter, bread and coffee. Oh, yes, and a can of peaches for dessert. I wonder why he looked like that and why did he run away? Is my playing as bad as all that?"

Frank had his big fist lifted to knock as she pulled open the front door. A delightful grin creased his broad face. "I'm bringing pay for last night's feast," he said, extending a newspaper-wrapped bundle to her. "Yellow tail, and a big one!"

"I could hug you for this," Jan cried. "I'm down to hamburger tonight. Frank, this is grand. Lance loves fish—want to eat with us?"

"Wish I could, but I have to play watchman tonight. If you think of it, you might send a cup of coffee over to the station about ten. Guess I'll run up and see Lance a minute. I think I've got a buyer for the clipper ship he just finished. Say, I almost forgot to ask, how's that bird you pulled out yesterday?"

"Hale and hearty, I guess. At least he eats as if he were. Frank, you don't happen to know of some kind of job for him, do you?"

"Job?" Frank rubbed his brown jaw thoughtfully. "Does that mean he's going to hang around here awhile?"

"So he says."

"Now, listen, Jan, if you don't want him around just say the word."

"I want him around if he works, she put in hastily. "I need money. I thought maybe Cap Tupples."

"That old grouch. He'd love to mistake me for a tuna and stick a harpoon in me! Trouble with him is he's gripped because he has to run fishing barges instead of liners. He ain't fit for anything but a barge, if you ask me!"

Heart of Gold

Jan started kitchenward with the fish. "He's all right, Frank. I'll ask him about a job for Derek."

Frank, following her, declared: "You don't know bad people from good, Jan. You think everyone has a heart of solid gold!"

She laughed merrily. "I'm not quite that stupid, old dear. Most people aren't really bad, though, if you take pains to know them. Run up to Lance now, will you? A prospective purchaser for the clipper ought to chirk him up for dinner."

A grateful warmth put a smile on her lips as she heard Frank call out to Lance. Frank was so good. He had been Chief Lifeguard at Sea Tide for five years, ever since old Peter Merriner had bought this house as haven for his years of retirement. Lance and Frank had hit it off from first acquaintance. Jan remembered what a joke it had been to everyone at the beach when Frank and Lance took turns entertaining each other on their days off by alternating flying trips and fishing trips.

It was Frank who had kept unceasing watch over Lance two years ago in the hospital; Frank who had kept the plane factory conscious of their duty to Lance; Frank who had forced them to bring specialists to his friend might have a chance to fly again. And now it was Frank who came every night without fail to carry Lance downstairs for dinner and up again; to make him chuckle over the mishaps and adventures of a lifeguard's day.

Sometimes, when the day was hot and not too windy, he took Lance in the wheelchair out on the beach front. Frank had enough medals to cover his great barrel chest, should he ever choose to wear them. He had saved, literally, hundreds of lives. He insisted, chuckling, pulling at his old black pipe, he would give a book about it some day and write the world the lowdown on human nature. Gratitude, he contended, was an artificial emotion of civilization. People, generally, were ungrateful. Few of them ever bothered even to thank him for saving their lives.

Jan often argued this with him. "Gratitude!" she'd scoff. "My goodness, Frank, they're scared half out of their wits and can't even think!"

At the market Jan spent five cents for carrots and five for lettuce, then emerged triumphantly from the fifteen-cent store with a razor, comb and toothbrush, still the thrifty possessor of two dimes.

She found Derek and Norma inspecting the fish when she arrived home. "I see you two are acquainted," she smiled, tossing her sweater on the hook with practiced ease.

Norma shook her head. "I think he's quite hopeless, Jan. He just asked me if fish always looked like this before it was cooked! He admitted never seeing a raw fish ready for the frying pan."

"Never had a fishing pole in my hands," he stated cheerfully.

Jan groaned. "And I'm planning to get you a job on a fishing barge!"

"Job? What if I don't choose to work?"

"I don't choose to feed you."

To be continued.

No. 139 — In Christ Episcopal Churchyard

DUE to circumstances beyond our control this column did not appear on Saturday, May 11, 1940. We regret that it was necessary to break our record and miss this one link. However, we will take care to see that it does not happen again.

In the column for May 4, 1940, we began our survey in Christ Episcopal churchyard. The first soldier we mentioned was Thomas Godfrey, and at this time we want to give you some additional information pertaining to this man. Buried with Thomas Godfrey in this cemetery are the following members of his family:

1. "William Godfrey/Died August 20, 1814/Aged 34 years."

Note: A son of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the Revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.

2. "In memory of/William Godfrey/who departed this life/March 31, 1812/Aged 36 years 2 months/and 8 days."

Note: We are a little doubtful regarding this man's place on the family tree. At the present time we are unable to make any definite statement regarding him.

3. "In memory of/Hannah/wife of/William Godfrey/who departed this life/June 9, 1819/Aged 77 years 9 months/? and 3 days."

Note: It would seem from the inscription on this woman's stone that she was the wife of William Godfrey, but when you consider her age and the date of her death this would appear to be almost impossible. If she was married to either of the William Godfreys mentioned above, she was much older than her husband, or else the data given on the marker is incorrect. We have no way of knowing the correct answer.

4. "Stephen Foulk/son of Thomas and Mary Godfrey/Died June 17, 1819/Aged 37 years."

Note: This evidently was a son of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.

5. "Hannah Stoner/daughter of Thomas and Mary Godfrey/Died July 15, 1813/Aged 37 years."

Note: A daughter of Thomas Godfrey, soldier of the Revolution, and his wife, Mary Godfrey.

ALTHOUGH at the present time the grave of Thomas Godfrey's wife is unmarked it is highly possible that she is buried beside her husband, and that the marker at her grave has simply gone the way of many other tombstones, in other words it has disappeared. We do know, however, that her name was "Mary" and we have reason to believe that before her marriage to Thomas Godfrey she was "Mary Stoner" or "Mary Foulk." Both are old family names in this section and both are listed as members of the Christ church parish in the church records.

At this time we wish to correct a mistake in our column for May 4, 1940. In giving the inscription from the stone marking the grave of Revolutionary Soldier Thomas Godfrey we gave his age incorrectly. The inscription should read as follows:

"In memory of/Thomas Godfrey/who departed this life/the 8th day of November/1831/In the 62nd year of his age."

Since Thomas Godfrey was only sixty-two years old at the time of his death in 1831 it would have been impossible for him to have taken part in the French and Indian war as we incorrectly stated in the column previously mentioned. It is possible, however, that the Thomas Godfrey listed in the Pennsylvania Archives as having taken part in the French and Indian war was the father of our Thomas Godfrey, and that he is buried in this cemetery in the Godfrey plot in an unmarked grave. Due to the great age of this graveyard, it is entirely possible that countless numbers of people are buried here in unmarked graves, and since we have no proof to the contrary

PITTSBURGH IS READY TO MAKE STEEL FOR ARMS

Pittsburgh, May 18 (AP)—This great industrial center which turned out 80 per cent of the nation's munitions steel in the World war is geared to begin work at once helping to arm again under President Roosevelt's proposed $1,182,000,000 defense program.

That was the report today from leaders of strategic war industries. They said the railroad and industrial "bottlenecks" that slowed output in 1917-18 had been broken and all industries were in "excellent position" to commence production for the armed forces. Many already have received "educational orders."

All felt the Pittsburgh area would get "a large share" of the defense expenditures. Some estimates ranged as high as 40 per cent "regardless of the way the President's program is broken down."

Steel Fast Need
In the highly mechanized Army contemplated by Mr. Roosevelt, steel is the first requirement for machinery and tank armor plate. This section expects to produce the major part of it.

In addition, the Army expects to draw upon the mills that sprawl along the Ohio, Allegheny and Monongahela rivers for shell casings, gun tubes, gun forgings, bombs, armor plate for ships, gas masks and, on a small scale, ammunition and chemicals.

Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson said in a defense week address here last February that "in a grave emergency" the War department also will depend on the district for plate glass, optical and testing instruments, machine tools, gas defense equipment and troop barges.

Since the World war, the railroads have laid down miles of new track for additional freight lines from the city. At the same time they increased freight car stocks.

"We can't tell just what the situation might be," stated a spokesman for one of the three big carriers, "but proof that we're capable of a heavy load was demonstrated by the manner in which we handled the greatest boom in transportation's history last Autumn. There was plenty of track and no shortage of cars."

Capable of Work

A steel company spokesman, observing that Pittsburgh mills produce more than one third of the nation's output and is the largest steel-producing center in the world, said the mills would have "no difficulty" handling re-armorment orders. The streamlined, continuous mills—an innovation since 1917—have never reached capacity production, he said, "although they were kept pretty busy last autumn."

Ample supplies of coal to feed the glowing furnaces here and in other industrial areas was assured by Byron Canon, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Coal Operators' association, who said the rich bituminous fields could step up production more than 30 per cent "if we can get the manpower."

HOME AT LAST

Philadelphia, May 18 (AP)—Six operations in two years! That's the record of eight-year-old Barbara Miller, who has just returned to her Lancaster home from a Philadelphia hospital. The child was afflicted with cancer of the right eye. One of the operations was a tonsilectomy.

The average daily school attendance in Texas in 1939 was 1,144,164, a gain of 97,000 compared with 1935.

JOHNNY APOLLO Screenplay by Philip Dunne and Rowland Brown. Directed by Henry Hathaway. Principals, Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan, Charley Grapewin and Lionel Atwill.

Story of a college boy who turns sour on schoolbook maxims when his fiancée dangles him before him. The pen Lad takes the quickest easiest way to fortune by teaming up with gangsters, gets caught himself, learns about the rat his pal is when they try to break jail.

It's gangster stuff with accent on story and character rather than machine guns, and it makes for a good solid movie. The acting—even Lamour's which atones for some of her so-wrong strong epics—is first-rate and Hathaway's direction keeps the tale to the point.

First lauders go to Grapewin as the gangster's mouthpiece but Nolan Power and Arnold pitch effectively too.

Anna Neagle, star of "Irene" will appear in person on the stage of the Hippodrome theatre in Baltimore on Sunday for all the shows. She is flying to Baltimore from Hollywood for this special one-day appearance.

THE STORY OF DR. EHRICH'S MAGIC BULLET

Bullet stars Edward G. Robinson and the film tells the true and dramatic story of man's struggle against a hundred million deadly public enemies. It is the romance of reality rather than of the boy-girl variety.

Featured with Edward G. Robinson is a large cast of supporting players including Ruth Gordon, Otto Kruger, Donald Crisp, Maria Ouspenskaya, Montagu Love, Sig Ruman, Donald Meek, Henry O'Neill and Albert Basserman.

Lake Pasteur, Dr. Ehrlich sought constantly to establish an ever closer relationship between medicine and chemistry. He named and sought that recurrent dream of every sincere microbe hunter, a magic bullet which would kill microbes just as a cartridge from a rifle will kill a game. For Dr. Ehrlich this dream came true, to the great benefit of all mankind.

The year-old stables that housed nearly 100 horses for harness racing at the Williams Grove track last year are being altered into clubrooms for the drivers and mechanics who come here for automobile and motorcycle races.

FLASHES OF LIFE
By The Associated Press

DIMINISHING RETURNS
Philadelphia—When Augustine Boggi 65 and his wife came from Italy they invested in a hand organ and began saving pennies. By 1930 they had $1,000 in the bank toward retirement. Then the bank failed. Unbeaten they turned to the old barrow wagon and pumped it, wheezy melodies until they had $2,000 saved in a tin can. Somebody stole the money.

INSULT
Salt Lake City—Mrs. Lewis M. Griffith didn't mind so much the theft of five gallons of gasoline. What irked was that the thieves ruined her garden hose. They cut two feet from it to siphon the fuel from her automobile.

CENSUS TAKER "SLT"
Omaha Neb.—It's the bridge playing women in West Omaha who are slowing the census count here—they're never at home complained Census Supervisor W. S. Stuyker. But in South Omaha, the most thickly populated part of the city but not the most fashionable the count is completed. "Women," he explained, don't play so much bridge out there.

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN

Screenplay by William Morrow and Edmund Beloin. Directed by Mark Sandrich. Principals, Jack Benny, Ellen Drew, Eddie Anderson, Phil Harris, Virginia Dale, Andy Devine, Lillian Cornell, Kay Lunsford, Thelma Harris, Dennis Day and the Abbott Dancers.

There's a sequence here in which Jack Benny walks outside an apartment house in a rainstorm while his retainer Rochester prays out to a comely light colored maid up stairs.

For the first part of the picture that sequence seems symbolic. Benny's out in the rain while Eddie Anderson the sickest negro comedian in Hollywood is tucking the picture under his arm and strutting away with it. For there is no funny sequence in recent films than this of Rochester's meeting wailing and leering with the shapely and talented Thelma Harris. When Benny arrives finally to break it up he's a heavy because nothing he has contributed is a tenth as amusing.

However a Benny displaying a ripper screen assurance comes into his own as the film proceeds. After he has been tricked into a western

Randolph Field Hums With New Air Activity

San Antonio Texas, May 18 (AP)—Things are humming at Randolph field, Uncle Sam's West Point of the air.

Cadet training will be stepped up materially in line with the desires of President Roosevelt to make the United States a defensive power of the world.

Five hundred cadets now are at the field but Army authorities, anticipating the President's request to congress for added millions for a huge fighting air corps, are making plans to accommodate at least 1,000.

Two hundred and fifty-six cadets, pick of the nine preliminary training schools of the nation, are now starting their second twelve weeks' training period.

After nine months of the world's most intensive air training a flying cadet becomes a second lieutenant in the air service corps.

Randolph field is known as the toughest of them all. Even college graduates and West Point men often are washed out (let out).

There are three training phases flying, classroom and military. A boy must have at least two years of college work, preferably a graduate, or undertake a rigid mental examination. His health must be perfect.

Randolph field has about 300 training ships. Planes are of the newest types and although not the fastest are built for ease of maneuvering and the instruction of cadets.

The average age of the flying cadet is 23—the army won't take them if they're over 27.

STATE TO NEED SCHOOL FUNDS

Harrisburg May 18 (AP)—A $1,000,000 emergency appropriation to aid financially distressed school districts will last only to the end of the year, a state Department of Public Instruction official forecast today.

The additional appropriation approved by the special legislative session was added to a $3,000,000 fund set aside by the 1939 session and now virtually exhausted.

The appropriation said Dr. E. A. Quackenbush, chief of the division of school business, will only carry us until the assembly is in session again in 1941 there will have to be another appropriation.

Dr. Clarence E. Ackley, deputy superintendent of Public Instruction, asserted the need school districts of Schuylkill county alone could have used the entire appropriation adding:

The matter of financing education in this state is going to be so serious during the next ten years that it will make the last ten look like a bed of roses.

He said it is likely that legislation to make a thorough revision of the school finance program will come before the 1941 session.

Infant Dies in Fire
Caused by Gasoline

Reading, Pa. May 18 (AP)—An 18-year-old mother is in a Reading hospital today—unaware her nine-month-old son burned to death Friday night in a fire which firemen said started when the mother poured gasoline in a kitchen stove at her Shinnsville bungalow.

Neighbors attracted by screams fringed Mrs. Elvabeth Weller, untroubled in flames. They carried her to a nearby pond and dumped her in the water. She was burned over her entire body. The child died in a crib as the flames destroyed the two-room home.

Mrs. Weller's husband Victor, 28, a WPA worker was away at the time but returned an hour after his wife had been taken to the hospital. He collapsed.

INTRAMURAL Sport Program Ends at College

Prof. Lester O. Johnson, director of the program reported 290 games of various kinds were played during the year with a total of 272 men participating.

A cup emblematic of stellar all-around ability during the program was awarded to the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

The intra-mural program was directed by a board whose members consisted of Professor Johnson, director, C. E. Blumheller, who served in an ex officio capacity, John Lindwed, who represented the non-fraternity group, Clinton Hendrickson, representative of the inter-fraternity group and John Zimmerman, president of the student board.

YANKS WIN 2ND STRAIGHT FROM A LEFTHANDER

(By the Associated Press)

Signals over! Left-handed pitching isn't making the world champion New York Yankees lie down and play dead any longer.

There was no doubt that any kind of southpaw slinging would baffle the Yanks during the first month of the season. The champions fuced left-handed hurlers in 14 of their first 20 games and lost ten of them.

But things are different now. During the gloomy days the Yankees' batting order had five left-handed hitters (six when Atley Donald or Vernon Gomez pitched). Friday there were only two and the club crushed the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

The second straight triumph lashed the Yanks within a half game of the seventh place White Sox. Like the previous victory Friday was at the expense of a southpaw, Edgar Smith.

Senators "Massacred"

Joe DiMaggio, who returned to action last week but his first home for two runs in the first inning and for the fourth the team collected four more two of them on a triple by Colonel Buster Mills.

In the day's only other game in the American league the Cleveland Indians massacred the Washington Senators 18-1. They piled up ten runs in the first inning on seven walks and five hits and added more as they went along with Jeff Heath hitting two homers.

In the best pitching stunt however Claude Passeau held the New York Giants to two singles, in giving the Chicago Cubs a 4-0 shutout. Passeau had a no-hitter until the sixth.

The game was marred by an accident in the first inning when Stan Hack of the Cubs was hit on the head by a ball batted by teammate Hank Leiber. Hack was knocked unconscious but the injury wasn't as serious as at first believed and the player was due to be released from a New York hospital today.

Goodman Hits Homer

A heroic home run with the bases loaded in the 11th inning was Ival Gooden (Ivy) Goodman's good deed for the Cincinnati Reds and helped him end the game with the Phillies 7-3. Boom-Boom Beck held the Reds helpless for seven innings but in the eighth Frank McCormick hit a two-run homer to tie the score. Brooklyn managed to edge out the

Friday and Saturday — "BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN"

"JOHNNY APOLLO." Screenplay by Philip Dunne and Rowland Brown. Directed by Henry Hathaway. Principals: Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan, Charley Grapewin and Lionel Atwill.

Story of a college boy who turns sour on schoolbook maxims when his financier dad embezzles himself into the pen. Lad takes the quickest, easiest way to fortune by teaming up with gangsters; gets caught himself; learns about the rat his pal is when they try to break jail.

It's gangster stuff, with accent on story and character, rather than machine guns, and it makes for a good, solid movie. The acting—even Lamour's, which atones for some of her so-wrong wrongs—is first-rate, and Hathaway's direction keeps the tale to the point.

First laurels go to Grapewin, as the gangster's mouthpiece, but Nolan, Power and Arnold pitch effectively, too.

Anna Neagle, star of "Irene," will appear in person on the stage of the Hippodrome theatre in Baltimore on Sunday for all the shows. She is flying to Baltimore from Hollywood for this special one-day appearance.

"THE Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet" stars Edward G. Robinson and the film tells the true and dramatic story of man's struggle against a hundred million deadly public enemies. It is the romance of reality rather than of the boy-girl variety.

Featured with Edward G. Robinson is a large cast of supporting players including Ruth Gordon, Otto Kruger, Donald Crisp, Maria Ouspenskaya, Montagu Love, Sig Ruman, Donald Meek, Henry O'Neill and Albert Basserman.

Like Pasteur, Dr. Ehrlich sought constantly to establish an ever close relationship between medicine and chemistry. For Dr. Ehrlich, this dream came true, to the great benefit of all mankind.

The year-old stables that housed nearly 100 horses for harness racing at the Williams Grove track last year are giving way to competition. They're being altered into clubrooms for the drivers and mechanics who come here for automobile and motorcycle races.

A tiny island in the South Pacific that had once been the relay point for international gun runners and has recently been established as a United States Marine air base is the scene for adventure and romance involving a girl air pilot, a wily scamp dealing in contraband and two devil-may-care leathernecks in "Isle of Destiny."

William Gargan and Wallace Ford are featured as the two fighting Marines who have only each other to fight with until June Lang, as the aviatrix, comes along. Gilbert Roland plays the gun runner chief, Katherine DeMille plays a native girl.

Penny Singleton, who plays "Blondie" in the movies, has the axe out for Peg Murray, cartoonist who covers Hollywood subjects for the syndicate that produces the "Blondie" comic strip appearing in The Gettysburg Times. Six months ago Murray disclosed, in his feature, that the actress, who thinks pennies are lucky (as witness her name), sent a bright new penny to every person who wrote her a fan letter. Miss Singleton reported this week that since then she has mailed out more than $100 in pennies.

"BUCK BENNY Rides Again." Screenplay by William Morrow and Edmund Beloin. Directed by Mark Sandrich. Principals: Jack Benny, Ellen Drew, Eddie Anderson, Phil Harris, Virginia Dale, Andy Devine, Lillian Cornell, Kay Linaker, Theresa Harris, Dennis Day, the Abbott Dancers.

There's a sequence here in which Jack Benny waits outside an apartment house in a rainstorm while his retainer, Rochester, pays court to a comely light-colored maid upstairs.

For the first part of the picture that sequence seems symbolic: Benny's out in the rain while Eddie Anderson, the slickest negro comedian in Hollywood, is tucking the picture under his arm and strutting away with it. For there is no funnier sequence in recent films than this of Rochester's meeting, wooing and teasing with the shapely and talented Theresa Harris. When Benny arrives finally to break it up, he's a "heavy" because nothing he has contributed is a tenth as amusing.

However, a Benny displaying a ripper screen assurance comes into his own as the film proceeds. After he has been tricked into a western sojourn by his "enemy" of the orchestra, Phil Harris, to win the favor of pretty Ellen Drew, the Benny stock soars. There's a load of tenderfoot fun, climaxed by one of the most hilarious chases yet filmed to twit the conventional westerns. The ending finds Buck Benny up against a couple of tough hounds he thinks are his stooges, and it's a bang-up finish.

The net result, barring a few lifeless cracks which smack of Benny's air program when it's weary, is a laugh-filled, exuberant piece of entertainment. Oh, yes, the music is nice, too.

Infant Dies in Fire Caused by Gasoline

Reading, Pa., May 18 (AP)—An 18-year-old mother is in a Reading hospital today—unaware her nine-month-old son burned to death Friday night in a fire which firemen said started when the mother poured gasoline in a kitchen stove at her Shanesville bungalow.

Neighbors, attracted by screams, found Mrs. Elizabeth Weller enveloped in flames. They carried her to a nearby pond and dropped her in the water. She was burned over her entire body. The child died in a crib as the flames destroyed the two-room home.

Mrs. Weller's husband, Victor, 28, a W.P.A. worker, was away at the time, but returned an hour after his wife had been taken to the hospital. He collapsed.

PANAMA CANAL BUILDER DIES

Paris, May 18 (AP)—Philippe Bunau-Varilla, the engineer who at 26 was director general of a French company that agreed to dig a canal across Panama, died today.

Bunau-Varilla, who would have been 81 on July 25, suffered injuries in the last war which necessitated the amputation of his right leg, and he never had fully regained his health.

Bunau-Varilla dedicated his life to building the Panama canal when he was 11 years old. Graduated from the famed polytechnic engineering school, he entered the employ of Count De Lesseps, builder of the Suez canal, and was instrumental in getting him to start the Panama project.

On his 79th birthday anniversary, Bunau-Varilla issued a statement declaring that the canal should be made into a sea-level waterway if American defenses were not to be completely paralyzed in event of war.

"Its locks must be eliminated," he said, "otherwise enemy agents can blast the locks and paralyze the exchange of American ships between the Atlantic and Pacific."

He estimated the project would cost at least one billion dollars and would take 20 years to complete.

Randolph Field Hums With New Air Activity

San Antonio, Texas, May 18 (AP)—Things are humming at Randolph field, Uncle Sam's "West Point of the air."

Cadet training will be stepped up materially in line with the desires of President Roosevelt to make the United States a defensive power of the world.

Five hundred cadets now are at the field but Army authorities, anticipating the President's request to congress for added millions for a huge fighting air corps, are making plans to accommodate at least 1,000.

Two hundred and fifty-six cadets, pick of the nine preliminary training schools of the nation, are now starting their second twelve weeks' training period.

After nine months of the world's most intensive air training a flying cadet becomes a second lieutenant in the air service corps.

Randolph field is known as the toughest of them all. Even college graduates and West Point men often are "washed out" (let out).

There are three training phases: flying, classroom and military. A boy must have at least two years of college work, preferably a graduate, or undertake a rigid mental examination. His health must be perfect.

Randolph field has about 300 training ships. Planes are of the newest types and although not the fastest, are built for ease of maneuvering and the instruction of cadets.

The average age of the flying cadet is 23—the army won't take them if they're over 27.

STATE TO NEED SCHOOL FUNDS

Harrisburg, May 18 (AP)—A $1,000,000 emergency appropriation to aid financially-distressed school districts will last only to the end of the year, a state Department of Public Instruction official forecast today.

The additional appropriation approved by the special legislative session was added to a $3,000,000 fund set aside by the 1939 session, and now virtually exhausted.

The appropriation, said Dr. E. A. Quackenbush, chief of the division of school business, "will only carry us until the assembly is in session again. In 1941 there will have to be another appropriation."

Dr. Clarence E. Ackley, deputy superintendent of Public Instruction, asserted the needy school districts "of Schuylkill county alone" could have used the entire appropriation, adding:

"The matter of financing education in this state is going to be so serious during the next ten years that it will make the last ten look like a bed of roses."

He said it is likely legislation to make a thorough revision of the school finance program will come before the 1941 session.

Intra-Mural Sport Program Ends at College

Gettysburg college's intra-mural sports program for the year was concluded Thursday afternoon when the Phi Delta fraternity football team defeated the Phi Kappa Psi team for the league championship by winning three games to one.

Prof. Lester O. Johnson, director of the program, reported 220 games of various kinds were played during the year with a total of 272 men participating.

A cup, emblematic of stellar all-around ability during the program, was awarded to the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity.

The intra-mural program was directed by a board whose members consisted of Professor Johnson, director; C. E. Bilheimer, who served in an ex officio capacity; John Lindtved, who represented the non-fraternity group; Clinton Hendrickson, representative of the inter-fraternity group; and John Zimmerman, president of the student board.

The board met Friday afternoon and reviewed the work of the year and made plans for next year.

DRIVING AID

Uniontown, Pa., May 18 (AP)—A 27-year-old Waltersburg man is accused of attacking his wife and her sister when they interfered while he was driving an automobile. The wife said she grabbed the emergency brake as the car started down a hill. The sister claimed she went to her aid and was struck in the face. The machine was halted without damage.

YANKS WIN 2ND STRAIGHT FROM A LEFTHANDER

(By the Associated Press) Signals over! Left-handed pitching isn't making the world champion New York Yankees lie down and play dead any longer.

There was no doubt that any kind of southpaw slinging would befuddle the Yanks during the first month of the season. The champions faced lefthanded hurlers in 14 of their first 20 games and lost ten of them.

But things are different now. During the gloomy days the Yankees' batting order had five left-handed hitters (six when Atley Donald or Vernon Gomez pitched). Friday there were only two and the club crushed the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

The second straight triumph raised the Yanks within a half game of the seventh place White Sox. Like the previous victory, Friday's was at the expense of a southpaw, Edgar Smith.

Senators "Massacred" Joe DiMaggio, who returned to action last week, hit his first homer for two runs in the first inning and in the fourth the team collected four more, two of them on a triple by Colonel Buster Mills.

In the day's only other game in the American league the Cleveland Indians massacred the Washington Senators 18-1. They piled up ten runs in the first inning on seven walks and five hits and added more as they went along, with Jeff Heath hitting two homers.

In the best pitching stint, however, Claude Passeau held the New York Giants to two singles in giving the Chicago Cubs a 4-0 shutout. Passeau had a no-hitter until the sixth.

The game was marred by an accident in the first inning when Stan Hack, of the Cubs, was hit on the head by a ball batted by teammate Hank Leiber. Hack was knocked unconscious, but the injury wasn't as serious as at first believed and the player was due to be released from a New York hospital today.

Goodman Hits Homer A heroic home run with the bases loaded in the 11th inning was Ival (Poison Ivy) Goodman's good deed for the Cincinnati Reds and helped break up the game with the Phillies 7-2. Boom-Boom Beck held the Reds helpless for seven innings, but in the eighth Frank McCormick hit a two-run homer to tie the score. Brooklyn managed to edge out the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in a strange game. Whit Wyatt, batted out of the box in the first inning two days before, went the route and held the Cards to seven hits, including a two-run homer by Don Padgett. Brooklyn got only six hits off three pitchers, but homers by Babe Phelps and Dolph Camilli accounted for three runs.

The United States has a land and water area of 3,738,395 square miles, including outlying possessions.
